ACACIA TECHNOLOGIES LICENSES COMPUTER SIMULATION TECHNOLOGY TO NATIONAL INSTRUMENTS

Newport Beach, CA. – (BUSINESS WIRE) June 23, 2005 – Acacia Research Corporation (Nasdaq: ACTG: CBMX) announced today that Tech Search LLC, a wholly owned subsidiary that is part of the Acacia Technologies group, a leader in technology licensing, has entered into a non-exclusive license with National Instruments covering a portfolio of patents that apply to computer simulation systems.

“We have now generated revenues from seven licensing programs this year,” commented Paul Ryan, Chairman and CEO of Acacia. “In addition to the computer simulation technology, we have begun generating revenues from our compact disk, credit card fraud protection, digital video production, interactive television, and multi-dimensional bar code technologies and continue to expand our Digital Media Transmission licensing program,” concluded Mr. Ryan.

The patents cover aspects of computer simulation systems which can iteratively simulate a complex system represented by a network of interconnected function blocks and enable the user to graphically program their simulations.

ABOUT ACACIA RESEARCH CORPORATION
